Visual artist Liina Länsiluoto (born 1983) lives and works in Helsinki, Finland.

Liina Länsiluoto creates paintings and spatial works that particularly explore the climate change and loss of biodiversity, relationship between humans and nature, and empathy. Länsiluoto aims to awaken art viewers to the uniqueness of life and the Earth, encouraging them to appreciate and cherish irreplaceable elements such as time, nature and humanity.

As an artist, Länsiluoto is experimental, combining oil painting with spatial experiences, acrylic with embroidery, and integrating text into paintings. Her educational background as a social scientist and work in reducing emissions in the built environment can also be seen in her art.
